PFLP Claims Responsibility for London Shooting

Joseph E. Sieff, a Zionist leader and president of the Marks and Spencer clothing chain, was shot and seriously injured by a lone gunman at his London home on 30 December. The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) claimed responsibility for the shooting, and a spokesman for the Marxist guerrilla organization said that one of its members had forced his way into Mr. Sieff's home and shot him in the head.

Scotland Yard has expressed fear that the shooting might mark the beginning of a campaign of terror in the United Kingdom by fedayeen terrorists, according to a UPI release. Another London businessman, Sir John Cohen, founder of the Tesco chain of supermarkets, reported that he had been warned that Arab guerrillas had drawn up a "death list" of leading supporters of Israel in Britain. He said a woman, whose name he would not disclose, called him to warn that she was second on the list and he was third.

The acknowledgment by the PFLP of responsibility in the Sieff shooting has led Scotland Yard to consider a series of security measures for prominent Jewish personalities in the United Kingdom, and police authorities have also ordered a special check on all Arabs leaving the country, according to a New York Times item. Terrorist Threats Against Geneva Conference

Following an anonymous telephoned tip on the evening of 30 December, Geneva police found six parcels of hand grenades, explosive material, and detonators in several luggage lockers at the city's Cornavin railroad station. The unknown caller had identified the lockers and stated that the bomb parcels had been deposited by Arabs, according to newspaper reports. Swiss authorities had no information as to how the weapons were to be used or the ultimate target or targets.

This discovery is the only tangible evidence to date that terrorists have planned operations in Geneva while the Middle East peace conference is going on. There has been a spate of reports, however, from Israeli and Arab security services, as well as a couple from Soviet officials, concerning travel to Europe of fedayeen terrorists and threats to disrupt the conference through terrorist activity. (See the 19 December issue, page 1, and Tab B of this issue for further details.) (UNCLASSIFIED)

Status of Persons Involved in the U.K. Weapons Smuggling Case

Allison Rae Thompson, Abdelkcbir el Hakkaoui and Ather Naseem, the three persons being held by British authorities for attempting to smuggle arms into the U.K., appeared in court a second time on 14 January. The outcome of that appearance is not yet available.

Theodore D. Brown, arrested at Travis Air Force Base in connection with the same case, has been freed on bail following a hearing on 11 January. Consequently, all Air Force bases in the U.S. have been alerted in the event Brown attempts to obtain another space-available flight. (For additional information on this case, see the 3 January issue, page 4, and the 9 January issue, page 4.): (UNCLASSIFIED)

DATE	PLACE	EVENT
6 January 1974	France, Macon	Arsonists destroy oil storage tanks. A fire set by arsonists burned five storage tanks containing 660,000 gallons of fuel oil. An additional 440,000 gallons were lost in December in a fire set at a storage depot at Besancon, and valves at an oil installation in Belfort also were deliberately opened. The perpetrators of the incidents are not known but the possibility of terrorism exists. Authorities are investigating. Bombs explode in Rome and Turin.
Four bombs exploded in Rome, causing extensive damage to buildings but no injuries. Messages found near the sites of the bombings accused the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation of being behind a "reactionary and fascist plot" in Italy. In Turin, according to Reuter, a bomb blast damaged the door of a building housing the Spanish Consulate and Chamber of Commerce. There were no injuries and the Spanish offices were not damaged. The persons responsible for the bombings are not known. (UNCLASSIFIED)

Lone Gunman Hijacks Domestic Flight Over Colombia

On 21 January, an Aeropesca four-engined Vickers Vicount turboprop with 50 people including 7 U.S. citizens aboard, was hijacked to Cuba by a lone gunman armed with a rifle, while on a flight from Pasto in southwest Colombia to Bogota. After the plane was seized it proceeded to Cali where it was refueled and a number of the hostages, mostly women and children, were set free. The plane then flew to the port city of Barranquilla, where two of its tires blew out on landing. After a six-hour delay to obtain new tires, the plane was refueled, four more hostages were released and the plane flew to Cuba with 15 passengers, including 4 of the U.S. citizens, and 5 crew members still aboard. Late in the evening, the plane arrived safely at Havana airport.

Colombian authorities have identified the hijacker as Jose Raimundo Tapias Carrion. Tapias is either an Ecuadorian or Colombian citizen and was described by witnesses as being young and well dressed. Tapias stated over the plane's radio that his motives for seizing the aircraft were political and by undertaking the hijacking he intended to "reject the system which oppresses the Colombian people and the Latin American people." Tapias made no demands other than to be flown to Cuba. It is unknown whether he is affiliated with any Colombian or Ecuadorian extremist group.

Press reports from Barranquilla state that Tapias took a shot at a photographer but missed. This has not been confirmed by subsequent reporting. Tapias' attitude while the plane was grounded at Barranquilla was described as constantly threatening, and he would allow only bare-chested mechanics with their hands in the air to approach the aircraft. Police find bomb in Rome station.
A carton containing a time bomb, Nazi flag and anti-Semitic literature was found in Rome's central train station in a baggage room near a dining hall often used by Jewish immigrants en route from the Soviet Union to Israel. Police said the bomb included a timing mechanism, acid and an electric battery, but added they were doubtful it could have exploded. (UNCLASSIFIED)

Preliminary Hearing for U.S. Arms Smugglers in London

Abdelkebir el Hakkaoui, Moroccan-born alleged leader of a California-based extremist group, appeared on 28 January at a preliminary hearing in London to face conspiracy and firearms smuggling charges along with two other members of his group, Pakistani Ather Naseem and Allison Rae Thompson, an 18-year-old U.S. girl, according to press reports. The court was told that during interrogation, Hakkaoui revealed a plan to kidnap an unidentified senior French government official as hostage for the release of 30 Moroccan prisoners. (For information on the arrest of the group and preliminary interrogations, see the 3 and 9 January 1974 issues.)

The statement read in court said that Hakkaoui planned to smuggle arms into Britain and then ship them to France. Hakkaoui said he planned the kidnapping to make a name for himself, and both Hakkaoui and Naseem claimed that Thompson did not know that pistols and ammunition were hidden inside her luggage. They both stated that Thompson was persuaded to bring a trunk to Britain in return for air fare. The prosecutor said there was no evidence as yet to connect the three accused persons with the Black September Organization or any other anti-Zionist group. The three are being held in custody for trial at London's Old Bailey Criminal Court. No date has been set for the trial. (UNCLASSIFIED)
